

International Philosophy of Culture Week

June 8-11

Chapter 3 – Colloquium: Philosophy as a Way of Life: The Work of Juliusz Domański

Juliusz Domański is the leading Polish voice on philosophy as a way of life. His work has earned him a place as one of the nation's most recognized and beloved scholars. His book La Philosophie: théorie ou manière de vivre? Les controverses de l'Antiquité à la Renaissance is immensely valuable as the only book-length study dedicated to a detailed consideration of the fate of PWL after the end of pagan antiquity and on recurrences in the Renaissance and Middle Ages. A longtime friend of Pierre Hadot (who wrote the preface to the aforementioned book), Domański is a genuine polymath, whose career has traversed the history of philosophy, classical philology, philosophy of culture, literary theory, and hermeneutics. In this event we celebrate his work and offer him the opportunity to present, as well as off an introduction and special lecture.

Date: June 11th 2019

Place: room 108, Institute of Philosophy,
University of Warsaw,
Krakowskie Przedmieście 3

Time: 4:00 pm – 6:30 pm

Speakers:

Juliusz Domański (University of Warsaw)
“The Presence of Pierre Hadot in Poland”

Krzysztof Łapiński (University of Warsaw)
“Atopia and Other Topics: Philosophy and Philology in Juliusz Domański's Work”

Matthew Sharpe (Deakin University)
“Juliusz Domański: Philosophy as Practice”

Chair: Eli Kramer

